At 9 o'clock the rain followed, cooling the hot earth and refreshing all nature, including sweltering humanity. The thermometer which hung in the APPEAL

St. Louis Republican, 20th: Captain Van Jack, a well-known broker of New Orleans, is spending a couple of weeks in the city, being en route to spend the season at Lake Minnetonka, where he has heretofore spent several summers in fishing and health-pro-moting exercises. He purposed this season going round by New York, and taking in the Green mountains, the St. Lawrence and the lakes on his way to Minnetoka, but, having siness and farms in this State and Illinois to look after, he changed the plan of his coute, and hence visits St. Louis. The Captain says he has suffered more from the heat since he has been in St. Louis than at any time before leaving New Orleans. The sun is hot there, but the heat is generally accompanied by a breeze, and the nights are cool tates. Captain Jack took an interest in the Floating Palace, and commenced showing at Pittsburg.
